Description of scientific activity

I began my research activity with the motif of death in contemporary Danish poetry, which was reflected in a monograph on this topic (2008). In connection with a project led by Professor Witold Sadowski (University of Warsaw), which I joined in 2014, I started research on the Scandinavian litanic poetry. The findings were disseminated in articles published in English and Danish. I then turned to contemporary Danish biofictions, which I analyzed using the concept of pretextuality as a key to understanding this form of narrativizing the lives of well-known figures. The outcome of this research is a monograph in Polish (2019) as well as articles in Polish, English, and Danish. Currently, I am working on Scandinavian narratives of illness and mourning.
