

Doctoral School of Languages and Literatures

Adam Mickiewicz University

Photograph

First and last name	Katarzyna Dziubalska-Kołaczyk
Academic title and position	Full professor, Vice-Rector for Research in charge of School of Languages and Literatures
Faculty, Institute, Department/Unit	School of Languages and Literatures, Faculty of English, Department of Contemporary English and Multilingualism
Scientific discipline	linguistics
Research areas	• general phonology & phonetics • phonology & phonetics of English & contrastive (English, Polish, German) • Natural Phonology, Natural Linguistics • phonotactics and morphonotactics • NAD (Net Auditory Distance) model of phonotactics • substantive evidence in Natural Phonology: first and second language acquisition, phonostylistics, aphasia, writing systems; the syllable in phonology & phonetics • Beats-and-Binding Phonology • morphology (adult and child), interconnections between phonology and morphology in acquisition • applications of natural speech processing in literacy and language training • interfaces between linguistics and technology, linguistics and speech therapy • language endangerment and revitalization • English as a lingua franca • complexity theory • Natural Growth Theory of Acquisition

Description of scientific activity	I specialize in English and comparative phonetics and phonology, phonotactics and morphonotactics, first and second language acquisition, linguistic theory, and typology. I am the founder of the Poznań School of Natural Phonology. I also conduct interdisciplinary research and applied work, for example on virtual teachers and therapists. I am the author of over 150 scholarly publications, including Phonology Without the Syllable: A Study in the Natural Framework, Beats-and-Binding Phonology, and Constraints and Preferences. I have served as principal investigator or participant in more than a dozen national and international research projects. I have held research fellowships at the University of London and the University of Hawai'i (Fulbright Foundation scholarship), and I was a visiting lecturer at the University of Vienna (1991–1994). I have been invited to deliver guest lectures at universities in many countries (over 45 invited talks). In 2009, I was elected a member of the prestigious Academia Europaea. Since 2005, I have also been a member of the Agder Academy of Sciences and Letters (Norway). Since 2007, I have been a member of the Committee on Linguistics of the Polish Academy of Sciences. In 2016, I was elected a foreign corresponding member of the Austrian Academy of Sciences. I am also a member of 21 professional associations. In 2012, I was elected President of the Societas Linguistica Europaea. Since 1998, I have served as Editor-in-Chief of Poznań Studies in Contemporary Linguistics (PSiCL), an international journal indexed in major citation databases and holding an Impact Factor. I am also the editor of 13 multi-author volumes. I am the founder and director of the Interdisciplinary Center for Speech and Language Processing at Adam Mickiewicz University. I have delivered approximately 120 papers at international conferences and congresses. I received the Prime Minister of Poland's Award for my outstanding habilitation dissertation, as well as numerous distinctions for scientific and organizational achievements (including the Minister's Award, the Medal of the National Education Commission, 14 Rector's Awards of Adam Mickiewicz University, and a Rector's scholarship for distinguished professors). In 2004, I was awarded the Gold Cross of Merit by the President of Poland, and in 2011, the Officer's Cross of the Order of Polonia Restituta. I have organized or co-organized dozens of international conferences, seminars, and workshops (including 17 editions of the annual Poznań Linguistic Meeting), bringing together leading linguists from around the world. I have supervised 22 PhD dissertations. Since 1997, I have been Head of the Department of Contemporary English at the Faculty of English of Adam Mickiewicz University. From 1996 to 2005, I served as Deputy Director of the Institute of English Philology. From 2005 to 2012, I was Director of the Institute, and since 2012, I have been Dean of the Faculty of English – the first faculty of its kind in Poland. From 2009 to 2016, I was a member of the Adam Mickiewicz University Strategic Development Team.
e-mail address	prorektorka.ds.nauki@amu.edu.pl dkasia@amu.edu.pl

Website, academic profiles (e.g. ResearchGate, ORCID, Google Scholar, and others)	ResearchGate Google Scholar
Activities aimed at improving doctoral supervision skills (e.g. training, workshops, and others)	I systematically develop my supervisory skills through active participation in international academic life. On a daily basis, I lead MA and PhD seminars, treating them as a space for partnership, collaboration, the exchange of ideas, and the joint search for the best research solutions. I am particularly committed to ensuring that young researchers feel supported while also being inspired toward independence and academic courage. I regularly take part in international conferences and congresses (over 100 presentations), which allows me to stay up to date with the latest methodological trends and best practices in doctoral education. This enables me to offer supervision grounded in current standards and the realities of contemporary scholarship. I directly translate my experience from research stays and fellowships at renowned international institutions – including as a Fulbright scholar and a visiting scholar at the University of Vienna – into my work with doctoral candidates. I strive to introduce international standards of academic mentoring and to support development within a globally oriented research environment. I also develop my supervisory skills through organizational activities: leading academic units, organizing conferences (including the Poznań Linguistic Meetings series), and working in editorial roles for scholarly journals. This allows me to effectively support doctoral candidates in the publication process and prepare them for functioning within the academic community. I have many years of experience supervising PhD candidates (over 20 completed doctoral dissertations) as well as working as a reviewer in academic promotion procedures. I approach each supervisory collaboration individually – as a shared path of academic development in which dialogue, trust, and high-quality research are essential.