| Description of scientific activity                                                | I am a linguist specialising in speech prosody, multimodal communication, and gesture–speech integration. In my research, I explore how prosodic and gestural cues interact in dialogue, with a focus on affect, alignment, and stance-taking. I develop and use multimodal corpora and tools (e.g., DiaGest, MultiCo) to study speech and motion data. I have led and contributed to international projects on multimodal interaction, including work on parliamentary discourse, child language development, and intercultural communication. My work combines experimental and corpus-based approaches to better understand human communication across modalities. |
