Scientific discipline	linguistics
Research areas	syntax, morphology, Nanosyntax
Description of scientific activity	I focus on analytical linguistics, primarily syntax and the mental lexicon, within the generative framework. My recent publications concentrate on the comparative morphosyntax of Slavic languages, with particular emphasis on Polish, especially grammatical representations of the internal structure of verbs. A key theoretical tool in my approach is Nanosyntax, which I use to investigate the relationships between syntactic structure, semantics, and their morphological realization.
